European Tour

By Arline Erickson

My friend, Miss Betty Skov of Edmonton, and I, arrived in New York on the steamliner "Trail Blazer" and spent two days of sight-seeing in that thrilling city. After visiting Rockefeller Centre, Radio City, television broadcasts, Chinatown, St. Patrick's Cathedral and "South Pacific," we boarded the "Queen Mary" for the journey across the Atlantic.

The ocean voyage was quite smooth and with all the entertainment aboard a modern liner, and deck games in the bracing salt air and sunshine, we had no time for sickness. A conducted tour of the whole ship was available, and not until then did we realize the size and spaciousness of this 83,000 ton ship.

After docking at Southampton 5 days later, we took the train across England, and boarded another ship for the journey across the North Sea to Holland. Our stay at The Hague and Amsterdam was most enjoyable and we visited the Peace Palace and several museums and art galleries where the paintings of Rembrandt and Van Dyck were kept. The countryside in Holland was very level and we saw many dairy farms and tulip fields, but no windmills.

In Brussels there were many interesting places and monuments: the Palace of Justice, a 12th century cathedral, the Royal Palace, monument to Queen Astrid, the Market Square, and the Waterloo Monument built on the site of the battlefield. There is a large panorama depicting the battle, and wax figures of the generals and the original uniforms, artillery and weapons used, are preserved in a museum. We climbed the 228 steps to the top of the monument and viewed the lovely green fields around, which were once the scene of a desperate battle. We also visited a lace factory and saw the many fine articles of the famous Brussels lace. Other interesting sights were the Atomium building, and the building where Edith Cavell was shot.

After a 4-hour train ride, we arrived in Cologne, a once-beautiful city situated on the Rhine River. There are many new buildings, but a great part of the city was destroyed during the war. The shops are filled with the most exquisite glassware, silver, Bavarian China, and other fine merchandise. A visit to the ancient cathedral, standing miraculously untouched among the ruins, leaves one amazed at the architectural achievements of the people several centuries ago. The magnificent stained glass windows, the carvings, statues, exterior decoration, and the graceful tall twin spires were all undamaged. The city, laborers devoted to the church.

The trip down the Rhine River on the steamer "Rheinlander" gave us a chance to see the German countryside: the many ancient castles standing high on the banks, the vineyards and fields on the hillsides. After visiting the old cities of Mainz and Freiburg, we arrived in Lucerne, Switzerland.

This lovely city lies on Lake Lucerne, surrounded by majestic mountains. There are many fine hotels on the lake-front, and a profusion of flowers and palm trees everywhere. The fine climate, scenery, abundance of food, and access to sports, attract tourists to Switzerland from all parts of the world. An interesting trip was the ascent of Mt. Pilatus (7000 ft.). We took the train to the foot of the mountain, then climbed by cable car on a 48 degree angle for over half an hour. There is a hotel, restaurant, and souvenir shop on top of the mountain. A view can be obtained of the surrounding mountains and valleys and the city below. A photographic exposition was held in Lucerne this summer, and the many exhibits from all countries and the photographic tower were especially interesting.

GOTOBED FAMOUS NAME IN DOMESDAY BOOK

(From the Baltimore Sun)

Until the Norman Conquest of England in 1066, there was no discussion as to what to name the baby, for names as such were unheard of. Eventually he'd have a nickname foisted upon him by none too courteous friends—if he grew tall and skinny, for example, he'd be called "Rattlebones," or "Rattlebones," (now Rathbones). But William the Conqueror caused to be published a census, the famous Domesday Book which listed, besides the 700 baronies, hundreds of such staunch Englishmen as Messrs. Badneigh, Blackthorn, Gotohed, Bliswench, Cockbrayne, etc. Succeeding monarchs enforced the census, and by Henry VIII's time, in 1509, people in all but the remotest parts of the kingdom had chosen names.

With Discovery Of Oil, Waskada, Manitoba, No Longer Quiet Little Town

(By G. S. R. in Winnipeg Free Press)

Up until recently Waskada, Manitoba, was just another prairie town; which is a very good thing to be. It came to life in 1893 when the Canadian Pacific branched out to the southwest from Deloraine. Since then the people of Waskada have never been out of touch with the rolling prairie which stretches out toward the Antler River and away eastward to the Turtle Mountains.

The prairie was the reason for the town's existence and whether, like Ed McGregor, they dug their livelihood directly from the soil, or carried on the business of the town itself, the people of Waskada could never forget that it was the land, the black soil edging up to their very doorsteps, upon which their fortunes depended.

Their fortunes may not have been spectacular, but though the earth was sometimes fickle it was more often generous; and there were many farmers and townspeople who could say, as did Mrs. Ed McGregor, "We had it quite hard sometimes but we have been doing well these past few years."

But it does not take many farmers to cultivate a great expanse of prairie soil and the town did not grow very big or very famous. The trains came in almost every day; one day from the east and the next day from the west, but not many people stopped off and there seemed to be no need for a hotel. Twice a week there were moving picture shows and after the show a young man and his girl could find a booth in the cafe. Or perhaps they would drive out to Goodlands or Deloraine. Many of the farmers and townsmen had cars and radios. They were able to move about freely and when they met at the Post Office or the Canadian Legion they discussed the latest developments in world affairs as well as the immediate problems and gossip of their own little community. It was a good life and it did not have to be dull.

But sometimes it did seem less exciting and adventurous than it might have been, especially to the younger men and women; and when they saw a chance to establish themselves in some larger and more complex town or city, they were apt to take it. But in spite of this drain on the youthful population there were many people who found life in and around Waskada sufficiently rich and rewarding, and who saw no reason in the world why they should ever move away.

There is, of course, nothing in all this to distinguish Waskada from hundreds of other Canadian country towns: strong, steady and unpretentious; fluctuating in size with the ebb and flow of the agrarian tide; spreading out with the influx of some new business enterprise, or dwindling in the face of competition from some more aggressive or fortunate neighboring town; but always playing its essential, its vital role in the life and economy of Canada.

But on Sept. 5 the picture changed. The little town of Waskada (population 325) made the headlines from the Atlantic to the Pacific. For millions of years, far beneath the black topsoil on which Waskada lived, a river of black oil had lain hidden. Recently that river was tapped. It is too soon yet to know for sure how rich or deep that hidden current is; but Waskada is no longer a quiet little Manitoba town. The man buying his dig at the drug store is not likely to be discussing affairs of state or his neighbor's harvest. Oil "I'll be another Redwater I tell you. Look what happened up there. And we've got it here; it's the real thing!" Albert, Ledue, Turner Valley, Lloydminster; these are the names around which conversations are built today.

It could, of course, all come to nothing, and Waskada, after a brief interlude, revert to its quiet ways. But what point is there in contemplating that? The town may be hidden, but the signposts are guiding engineers and businessmen, wildlanders and adventurers, toward Waskada.

These signposts indicate that for better or worse the people of Waskada are entering a new life, filled with new freedoms and new responsibilities. For perhaps, after all, will bring tragedy and heartbreak. But the men who till the soil, and who through the years have watched the shifting skies, have learned to accept nature's changing course and to trust themselves. If now they have indeed wrested the secret of the cavern Aladdin's wonderful but sometimes surprising oil-lamp, may it bring them only joy.

Canada Now "Producing" $23 Billion

Bank Head Says With Canadian Dollar At A Premium Is Disadvantage To Producers

EDMONTON.—Canada's gross national "product"—the total value of all its goods and services—will be about $23,000,000,000 for 1952, S. M. Wedd of Toronto, president of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, said in an interview here.

Mr. Wedd said this would be an increase of almost $1,000,000,000 over last year.

Reporting that the Dominion's gross product had increased by about four times since the early years of the Second World War, he credited widespread development in the west as one of the main contributing factors.

The bank official said he felt that the present disparity between the Canadian and American dollars was a disadvantage as Canadian primary producers.

They were in the majority in Canada, particularly in the west.

Mr. Wedd said that with the Canadian dollar at a premium, western farmers would receive less for the grain because the international agreements were based on the U.S. dollar price.

The word "ink" comes from a Latin word for a purple writing fluid which the Roman emperors used to sign their papers.

MISS AMERICA IS CROWNED—Now on a tour of principal American cities, Neva Jane Langley, who entered the "Miss America" contest as "Miss Georgia," was crowned queen for 1953 by Miss America of 1952, Colleen Hutchins. Miss Hutchins won the title last year competing as "Miss Utah."

Could Go To Moon On 30 Lbs. Of Fuel

OAK RIDGE, Tenn.—An atomically-powered "space ship" envisioned by a nuclear physicist at a conference of scientists here theoretically could reach the moon on 30 pounds of fuel.

Dr. George Gamow of George Washington University, who worked on the atomic bomb at Los Alamos, discussed atomic rockets before a three-day conference on nuclear and reactor physics. He was the only "non-secret" talk of the conference.

A comparatively small atomic rocket theoretically could circle the earth 60 times or go to the moon and back on 30 pounds of uranium-235, Gamow said, but would be unable to carry passengers.

"The radioactivity will kill them," he said. He added, however, that such a rocket probably could be controlled by radio.

To show the advantage of using atomic fuel, Gamow said a rocket using gasoline or other conventional rocket fuel would have to be a giant, three-stage device weighing 4,210 tons.

This would include a "sky-scraping" type" rocket of 4,000 tons or more which would detach itself at the end of the first stage of flight from a projectile 20 times smaller. The second rocket in turn would release a third one weighing only about 10 tons, he said.

"With atomic fuel, only one, much smaller rocket would be needed, and it has been proved more or less in theory that it could get to the moon and back," Gamow said.

Rockets at present travel only one-third the speed believed required for such a flight, he said, but the German V-2, nevertheless is as large as a "four-storey house". The problem, he said, is attaining the necessary speed without undue increase in size.

While the size of a gasoline rocket to the moon almost defies imagination, Gamow said, an atomic rocket theoretically capable of the trip would need about the same amount of fuel as an atomic submarine or plane.

Paralysis Victim Won Prize For Most Beautiful Grounds In Regina

This summer Mrs. Rasmussen won the prize for Regina's most beautiful home grounds.

She says her physician told her she had saved her life by working in the garden.

"I ventured out gradually at first," she said in an interview. "Now I do everything but cut the lawn. I can't move fast enough for that."

Mrs. Rasmussen's success in the competition this year was her second in a row. Last year she also won two trophies in a contest conducted annually by the Regina Horticultural Society.

"I don't like formal gardens," Mrs. Rasmussen commented. "I have 300 gladioli but I don't like them in rows. Formal gardens are all right for places like the Parliament Buildings."

More Ducks In Sask. And Alberta Than In Manitoba

WINNIPEG.—Manitoba's wild duck population is down 25 per cent. from last year but both Saskatchewan and Alberta show increases, Bert W. Cartwright, chief naturalist for ducks Unlimited, said.

In his report, following an aerial survey, Mr. Cartwright said Saskatchewan's duck population in up 25 per cent. while Alberta's is double that of last year.

He said waterfowl already have begun massing for their southern flight.

Ducks By The Thousands

Southern Alta. Termed Hunter's Paradise, Farmer's Headache

LETHBRIDGE, Alta.—Two years of abundant moisture in Alberta have turned the southern part of the province into a duck hunter's paradise and a farmer's headache. Migrating ducks are leaving a swath of ruined grain fields in their wake throughout southern Alberta. Farmers say their losses will run into many thousands of dollars.

Ducks—thousands upon thousands of them—seem to hit the south just as the wheat ripens and one farmer in the Raley district claims the birds wait at the roadside, ready to pounce on the crops as soon as they are swathed.

A field of winter wheat on the farm of Mrs. Herbert Walker of Raley was swathed and within a few minutes a horde of ducks swarmed upon it. The field was cleaned out. "There were only a couple of kernels left in each head of wheat—not even enough to make the swathing worthwhile," Mrs. Walker said.

In the Warner district, south of here, a farmer swathed a mile-long strip of wheat. He said that a week later, while he was combining, the ducks poured into the far end of the field. There wasn't enough left to thresh.

At Burdett, near Medicine Hat, another farmer reported the loss of almost an entire quarter section of wheat through duck damage.

Attempts to frighten the birds off with scarecrows have been futile. Now Alberta farmers have been issued permits allowing them to recruit others to shoot waterfowl causing appetites for grain are causing serious losses. Even this hasn't discouraged the grain-eaters.

Many feel the open season on ducks should begin with harvest. Others would like some sort of insurance to assist those whose crops have been heavily damaged by the birds.

Meanwhile, it's a hunter's boon and a farmer's bane.

First Half Of '52 Farmers' Income Declines

Ontario Suffered Biggest Drop, But Saskatchewan's Income Increases

OTTAWA.—The flow of cash to Canadian farmers eased for $25,000,000 to $1,226,700,000 during the first half of 1952 as a decline in income from livestock and other sales overbalanced higher receipts from grain, dairy and vegetable shipments.

The bureau of statistics estimated an over-all two-per-cent. decline in cash income from the sale of farm products from $1,251,800,000 in the first half of 1951. In addition, Prairie Farm Assistance payments totalled $2,450,000, down from $9,565,000 last year.

A big decline in cattle sales was a major factor in the slip in income. Cash income from the sale of livestock and poultry declined to $468,600,000 from $501,200,000. Egg sales declined to $52,117,000 from $59,723,000.

Income from grain, feed and hay sales including Wheat Board payments climbed to $395,247,000 from $361,049,000. Vegetables and other field crop sales jumped to $10,188,000 from $67,797,000.

Ontario farmers suffered the biggest decline. Cash income in that province dropped to $386,231,000 from $393,226,000. Manitoba's income was down to $35,500,000 from $37,000,000. But Saskatchewan's income rose from $282,318,000 from $249,897,000.

Income for other provinces with 1951 figures in brackets: Alberta, $214,056,000 ($205,311,000); British Columbia, $41,773,000 ($43,432,000); Quebec, $185,777,000 ($197,240,000); New Brunswick, $24,807,000 ($21,718,000); Nova Scotia, $20,485,000 ($20,885,000); Prince Edward Island, $15,763,000 ($15,243,000). Figures for Newfoundland were not included.

Shipping Fever of Cattle

Shipping Fever is a serious cattle disease that occurs mainly in fall and winter months. It affects those cattle that are moved more readily, such as feeders, nevertheless it will develop in cattle on the farm not moved. It is believed that the disease can be caused in healthy animals when their resistance over-heating or chilling at loading is lowered through such factors as when cattle are moved, lack of bedding, wet corrals, etc. An infected animal can spread the disease to healthy animals.

The disease affects cattle chiefly between the ages of 6 months to two years old. The symptoms are: first the temperature of the animal rises, accompanied by loss of appetite, shivering, discharge from the nose, occasional cough, swollen, watery eyes, gaunt appearance and diarrhoea. The tongue may be extremely swollen and the animal slobbers. The onset is usually sudden. On the first day one or more cattle are taken with bloody diarrhoea, pneumonia and fever. In the second and third days it extends to others. Those to sicken first will die as rapidly as in twenty-four hours. In case of an outbreak a vet should be called to properly diagnose the sickness, as this disease is rather difficult to diagnose.

As Shipping Fever strikes at this time of the year, farmers by proper management and planning can eliminate to a large extent its occurrence. It should be remembered that factors such as overcrowding, lack of rest, water, feed and poor shelter of cattle in transit or otherwise will cause this disease and every effort should be made to eliminate these factors.

Inoculation with bacterin at least two weeks before moving cattle or weaning calves will give cattle resistance to this disease. It is important that inoculation be done as specified, that is BACTERIN used — and inoculate at least TWO WEEKS before shipping. Never use a bacterin immediately before shipping as on the fourth day the animal is more susceptible to the disease than before inoculation. However, two weeks after inoculation the animal has built up the protection to the disease which will last for a period of nine months. A serum is different to bacterin. Serum gives protection to animals a short time after injections, but this protection lasts only for three to six weeks.

Serum can be administered to animals before actual shipment and thus can protect animals during shipment. It is also used for treatment, however, newer sulfa drugs in combination with it give best results in treatment of sick animals. Qualified veterinarians should be called in cases of sick animals to ensure proper administration.

A new bulletin on Shipping Fever is now available in this office, free on request.

Bulletin on Dairy Barns

Of interest to farmers that are contemplating to build a barn presently or in some near future date is a new bulletin entitled "Dairy Barns for Alberta," that is now available from this office. This bulletin prepared by the Dept. of CBC National School Broadcasts, now in their tenth year, provide interesting information for young student and teacher alike. Each program is planned by experts to suit classroom needs at times when students can best hear it. These school programs are not substitutes for classroom teaching, but supplement the teacher's efforts with dramatizations of history, descriptions of nature study, and character studies of important Canadian personages.

Have you anything to sell, trade or buy? Try a Times want ad.

Agriculture and the University of Alberta, discusses the planning of a barn, deals with details on stall-type barn, loose housing barn, on milk houses and remodelling of old barns. Plans and sketches illustrate the various points under discussion and provide reference to many details which go along with the building of the barn. Tables on ventilation such as flue areas needed for number cows, size of fans and construction where such are used, tables on concrete work, as well as other measurements are listed for the farmer's convenience. This bulletin is available free on request from this office.

Poultry Flock Approval

The Poultry Branch is now inspecting flocks for approval and wish to remind flock owners that desire approval that if not already done so, should submit applications immediately. This is important if flocks are to be approved in time to make arrangements for the sale of hatching eggs. Flock owners are also advised to remove small, immature and undesirable birds. Cull birds are a liability not a profit. The management and the feeding of a flock to get the bird into high production in order that they will maintain such production during winter months and coming year should receive careful attention. Disinfection of houses and equipment plays a very important part in getting the proper start.

Hatching eggs have brought poultry flock owners added revenue at very little extra cost. If you are interested in their production as beginner and wish information on regulations governing these, don't hesitate to enquire.

Approved flock owners are reminded that R.O.P. males in some breeds are in short supply and arrangements should be made early for cockerels to head the flocks.

Dale Henderson, eleven year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Henderson, east of town, was rushed to an Edmonton hospital on Monday suffering from serious injuries received in a tractor accident on the farm. It appears that young Dale was riding on the side of the tractor and was pushed off the machine when it was driven close to some trees that threw him under the tiller being pulled by the tractor. He was cut badly about the head and body. His injuries were such that it was deemed necessary to take him to Edmonton for medical attention.

Turkey Leftovers

Why not try something different instead of just "cold turkey slices." Arrange turkey slices in centre of baking dish. Surround with stuffing, and cover with gravy. Cover and place in moderate oven, 375 degrees F for about 20 minutes, or until thoroughly heated. Or place a tablespoon of stuffing in centre of each turkey slice. Roll up, and secure with toothpick or string. Arrange in casserole; top with leftover gravy, and heat, covered, in moderate oven.

Here is that recipe for fluffy boiled frosting which can be made in a variety of flavors. It doesn't sugar either.

Remember? I was telling you about it 2 weeks ago.
Snowbank Frosting makes about 2½ cups.

2/3 cup granulated sugar.
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar.
1/3 cup water
2 egg whites.
2 tablespoons gran. sugar.
¼ cup sifted confectioners sugar.
¼ teaspoon vanilla.
¼ teaspoon salt.

Cook 2/3 cup granulated sugar, cream of tartar, and water until it forms a hard ball in cold water (250 degrees F. on a candy thermometer). Beat egg whites until they form peaks. Beat in 2 tablespoons granulated sugar; then slowly beat in the syrup, confectioners' sugar, flavoring, and salt. Beat a few minutes until it holds its shape.

Plant Doctors and Plant Diseases
No group of scientists have contributed more toward the welfare of agriculture in Western Canada than our plant doctors or plant pathologists. They are our G-Men in plant disease control.

Diseases are Important. The rusts, smuts, rots, blights and wilts have destroyed plants ever since man began to cultivate crops. Down the ages they have brought famine, hunger and misery with them. Plant diseases to a large extent stamp the pattern of agriculture upon a country. In Western Canada, the control of plant diseases is no less important than the preservation of our prairie soils.

A Free Service. For over 40 years, the Canada Department of Agriculture has provided farmers with a free, medical service for crop plants. Unfortunately, not enough farmers use it. Not only should more prairie farmers know that this service is available to them, free of charge, but they should also realize that they themselves can make a valuable contribution towards maintaining the health of Canada's field crops by reporting immediately all cases of unknown plant disease, and by applying control methods which are known to be effective.

Disease Identification. Any farmer who finds suspicious-looking, diseased plants in his grain fields, should send specimens of them—dried, and wrapped in several layers of newspaper—to his nearest Dominion Laboratory of Plant Pathology (Winnipeg, Saskatoon, or Edmonton), or to Line Elevators Farm Service, Winnipeg. He will then be told what the disease is, and what measures are necessary to control it.

Weeds Identified Too. The Line Elevators Farm Service also provides a weed identification service for farmers. Take a specimen of the weed you want identified to the local agent of any of the Companies listed above, and he will forward it to us. We will identify the weed and send you up-to-date information on its control. Protect your crops. Be sure you can identify every plant disease and weed on your own farm.

PROVINCIAL DEBT

This is what your Alberta Government has done to the $167,000,000 public debt accumulated between 1908 and 1935:

- $25,000,000 was saved the taxpayers of Alberta outright through debt reduction negotiations.
- Average interest rate on Province of Alberta debentures in 1936 was 4.88 percent and now is 2.87 percent.
- A debt retirement plan has been arranged to wipe out the entire debt by 1973—in 21 years time—or at an earlier date if it is in the public interest to do so.
- This schedule of debt retirement will require 5 percent of the revenue on income account compared to 51 percent required to pay interest charges in 1936.

How much has the Provincial Debt been reduced?
Total debt, March 31, 1936 ..... $167,027,144
Total Debt, March 31, 1952 ..... 97,742,467

Stubble Land Seeded in Late Fall Make Best Seed Beds

There are other factors also, such as the kind of mixtures and seeding methods which will have an effect on the potential of the crops. In a recent field trial comparisons, says M. R. Kileher, Experimental Station, Swift Current, Sask., have shown that in the more favorable conditions of the drier prairie area, forage crops will produce more for a longer period of time if seeded in 12-inch spaced rows than if seeded in six inches apart. For this same area late fall seeding has proved to be more profitable than early fall. In hill seeding will permit early spring germination and the young plants will use the initial spring moisture to advantage.

Although there is a price choice of crops to grow, it can be shown that a standard dryland mixture of crested wheatgrass, bromine grass, and alfalfa would be a profitable combination. This grass-alfalfa mixture should be seeded at about 8 pounds per acre, in 12-inch spaced rows and the alfalfa should be seeded at 4 pounds per acre, two pounds crested wheatgrass, and two pounds Ladak alfalfa. Depth of seeding should not exceed

Locals

Mr. Steve Hlynka was an Edmonton visitor last week-end.

The October meeting of the United Church Men's Club will be held in the church parlor on October 21 at 8 p.m.

Mrs. F. Hockett was happy to have her daughters all home for Thanksgiving week-end. Betty Lou and Donna Faye from Viking; Lorna Jean from Vermilion; and Bernice Anne from Edmonton all arrived to visit with their mother and sisters Loraine and Gail at home. Darrell had been home the preceding week-end but he was unable to join the family gathering at Thanksgiving.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Stienert and small son of Edberg are visiting here this week with Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Gulltner and Ricky. Mrs. Stienert was the former Jean Gulltner.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Daley (the former Verna Mikkelsen) at the Misericordia hospital, Edmonton, on Friday, October 10, a son.

Miss Irene Lambert returned from Rivers, Man., on Sunday.

Mr. Pryce Jones who was enroute from Edmonton to Thayer stopped over at Irma last week-end. His many friends here are pleased to note that he seems as hale and hearty as ever in spite of the sick spell he had last summer.

Miss Josephine Saville spent the holiday week-end at her home here. Olga Hlynka attended the CGIT provincial conference held at Olds last week from Friday to Monday. Olga says there were 120 girls in attendance and she reports a most pleasant and profitable time for everybody. She has returned to our local group full of new ideas and enthusiasm.

Mr. and Mrs. Hutchinson of Vermilion visited at Irma last week where they were joined by their daughter Mrs. V. Torrance and grand-daughter Jeanie, and then continued to Red Deer to visit relatives and also to call on our old friends Mr. and Mrs. Earl Fuder and family. On the return journey Mrs. Torrance and Jeanie accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Hutchinson to Vermilion.

We would like to thank Miss Arlene Erickson for the wonderful account of her journey through Europe which she has kindly written for the Times. It's almost as good as going just to read it. Shirley and Walter Enger were holiday visitors to their home at Irma. Other young folk who also came home for the week-end were Lillian Masson, Charlotte Milne, Irene Dubasz and Allen Rae.

A snow storm on Wednesday morning didn't improve the weather, the landscape or anybody's temper. However, it melted away after dinner but the very sight of the cold white stuff gave us gooseflesh—did the voice of the radio announcer threatening us with more cold weather. Also everyone was remembering how winter came to stay just a year ago Wednesday. But let's hope this cold spell is only a preliminary skirmish and that the main bout is still far down the list.

Our heartfelt congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. John Dunbar Jr. whose wedding took place at Spirit River on October 11 and also to Mr. and Mrs. Maryn Stephenson of Wainwright, the former Elfrida Fenton of Irma, who were married in Irma, United Church on October 14.

Mr. and Mrs. Salisbury of Edmonton spent the Thanksgiving week-end in Irma with Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Savard.

"My son has chosen banking"

When a bank manager retired last year, he wrote his General Manager to tell why he was proud his son also had chosen a banking career:

"I shall always recall my banking days with pleasure and I cannot think of any other occupation that gives one a greater opportunity to meet people and form lasting friendships. I have been privileged to serve the bank in three provinces... That my son has chosen banking is also a great satisfaction to me. He is most anxious to make good on his own account."

Any young man on the lookout for an interesting and worthwhile career—for opportunities to grow and get ahead—should take a look at banking. Have a talk with the bank manager in your neighborhood branch. It may well prove an important turning point in your life.

Merchants and business men should not overlook the fact that the Times carries more local and district news than any other paper its size in the province. The advertising possibilities are the best you can find.
